WALL STREET. THE CLOSING QUOTATIONS

Bull operators have believed for some time that a small syndicate headed by George W. Perkins, of J. P. Morgan & An Co., was carrying a large amount of U. S. Steel common with the expectation of a substantial advance in price. It was current gossip in the Stock Exdeavor to put 'little steel' up to 50. For Am.

Unfavorable monetary condi-tions, however, have interfered on more than one occasion with the plans and desires of the bulls, and now it is re- Chic ported that the Perkins syndicate is gradually unloading its holdings. The Chic. Chic. Chic. Col. boon is attributed largely to the selling Col. of pool stock. Here is one more indication that the promised bull movement in the stock market is postponed until after the restoration of normal Dec. & Hud...... Dec. & R. Grande Dec. Union Ry....

Exchange frankly declare that the time is not ripe for a steady bull movement Ren and they deprecate the present attempts Rock Island Rock Island pf.... to force such a movement. It is well understood that the leading bank presidents are opposed to any bull movement now. The prevailing high rates for money is partly due to the determination of the banks to head off speculative splurges. New York bankers agree that so long as the legitimate demand for money in the interior continues rampant speculation in the New York Stock Exchange will be a menace to the monetary situation.

York Stock Exchange will be a menace to the monetary situation.

When the stock market opened this morning call-money was lending at 14 per cent. The rate quickly declined to 18 and then to 12 per cent. Most of the call-loan regewals were made at 12 per cent. About noon there was a hardening of the money market and the rate for call loans went up to 15 per cent. Some of the bull operators made the point that the loans made to-day will carry porrowers over until Monday, consequently the market will not be vexed by the money rate to-morrow. The hand of Morgan was apparent in the steadying of stocks with which his name is connected. The Morgan interest is evidently on the conservative side and is exercised chiefly to prevent a sorious break in prices. The backers of Reading, have thus far shown no disposition to abate either their activity or their energy. With a strong antibullish sentiment against them they forced the price of Reading up a full point in the forenoon and the trading from one hand to the other put a multitude of large sales on the record.

Private telegrams from Washington, posted in brokers' offiss, quoted Secretary of the Treasury Shaw as saying that he believed the money conditious in New York would work out all right. In some quarters the opinion was expressed that the high rates for money might cause a resumption of gold imports. This feeling was encouraged by the heavy increase in our cotton exports. London gave some encouragement to the bullish element by buying about 5,000 shares of American securities early in the day. There is still a good foreign demand for Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Erie common.

Politicians are getting rid of their Metropolitan as fast as possible, and as that stock continues to go down it is reasonable to suppose that most of this liquidation is at a loss. Aside from this weakness in Metropolitan election influences apparently cut no figure in the stock market. The strong pool back of Brooklyn Rapid Transit was able to advance the price of that stock 1-2 per cent, early in the day.
